C. & W. C. Building New Coal Chute.
 What answers the purpose of a genuine coal chute for the coaling of engine is being erected by the C. & W. C. railway at the Whitner street crossing. Formerly a narrow platform, erected on the side of the track answered this purpose, but General Manager A. W. Anderson decided some days ago that too much time was lost in coaling engines from so small an arrangement. Consequently, the small platform has been torn away and a new one, several times as large, is being erected instead. As the plans for the new terminals on South Main street call for a first class, sure enough coal chute, the affair being put up now is only a temporary one.

Godfrey stated last night that the special meeting of city council which had been called for this evening would be postponed until some night next week, when second reading of the supply bill for the next year will be given and the license ordinance for 1915 given consideration. City council has procured a copy of the Greenville license ordinance and will fashion one for the city of Anderson after that. As generally known, the city council will be forced next year to employ a different system of fixing licenses from that of heretofore.
